Army Still Travels on Its Stomach

Wherever American GI's roam, the chow line is not far behind. These pictures taken somewhere in South Korea by NEA-Acme photographer Ed Hoffman, illustrate the old truth that chow is one of the nearest things to a GI's heart. At right, members of a 155-mm gun battery wait with drawn mess kits at a point somewhere behind the battle line. Below right, Cpl. Alfred Valader of New Brontfield, Tex., uses the big gun for a table. As he eats, Cpl. Frank Wilson of Peekskill, N. Y., cleans the piece. Left below, Army Medical Corpman take time out to "examine" a case of Korean "cider" found in a front line position.

Chow line near the front line — "somewhere in Korea."

An interesting case for the Medical.

Yanks Destroy Box Cars Near Suwon

A group of box cars burns furiously in a five-track railroad marshalling yard five miles south of Suwon after Yanks strafed them with machine gun and rocket fire during raid July 15. A total of 31 cars were reported destroyed or damaged. Photo was made by RF-80 jet reconnaissance plane. (AP WIREPHOTO via Army Radiophoto from Tokyo)

The Steel Picture—

U. S. steelmaking capacity approaches 100,000,000 tons a year, up eight per cent since the end of World War II, and greater than it ever was at the war's peak. Nevertheless, the war in Korea and threat of a bigger war forces demand for steel above the supply. This causes either cladding up of prices and a "gray market" or some sort of government allocations and controls on supply. The newschart above shows U. S. steel-making capacity and actual production from 1901 through the first half of 1950.

Active Duty To Begin For Reservists

Undecided When National Guard Might Be Called

WASHINGTON, July 20—(AP)—The armed services will begin immediately ordering limited numbers of Reservists to active duty.

There was no announcement when National Guard units might be called into federal service.

President Truman today authorized the calling of Reservists and Guardsmen, along with free use of the draft law to build up fighting units.

In a quick follow-up to the President's call for greater military strength, legislation was introduced in both houses of Congress to "freeze" in military service for the next 12 months all persons now in uniform.

Could Be Held A Year

This means that men whose enlistments are expiring could be kept in for another year.

The emphasis in all three services was for individuals with immediately usable skills, such as electronics experts.

The Army and Air Force indicated that some of their organized Reserve units, as well as individual reservists, will be called.

The Navy said that is a possibility that some air reserve squadrons may be summoned into service in units. The Marine Corps said it, too, may mobilize certain selected Reserve units.

A decision on calling up National Guard outfits is not expected until around the end of this month.

The defense department declined to estimate how many of the more than 2,000,000 (M) members of the Reserves will be called to active duty.

May Raise Draft Age

The defense department is expected to take a further step to mobilize manpower by asking Congress to raise the top age subject to draft from 26, possibly to a new figure of 35.

Under the present draft law, which provides for the drafting of men aged 19 through 25, draft boards have been called upon to furnish an initial quota of 20,000 men.

In announcing its "selective" call-up of Reserves, the Navy said that no deferments will be granted except in cases involving key industrial jobs vital to defense or in cases where community welfare would be seriously affected.

The Navy said its quota will be filled as far as possible from the organized Reserve, who are considered to be qualified for active duty, and from the fleet reserve.

Volunteer For Duty

All three services said that they intend to provide a minimum of one year's service for Reservists ordered to extended active duty. And all three said that Reservists may continue to volunteer for active duty.

The Army and the Air Force said Reserve officers returned to active duty, either by volunteering or being called up, will keep their latest Reserve grades. They promised that Reserve officers holding the rank of major or higher, but already on active duty in a rank lower than that, will be considered for promotion before there is any general recall of

The Army said it badly needs medical, engineer and infantry officers holding the rank of captain or lower.

U. S. Intends To Carry A Big Stick And Not Speak Softly

By J. M. Roberts, Jr.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The United States has taken the first steps toward throwing its entire national strength into prevention of World War III if that is possible, or toward fighting it if that becomes necessary.

The President has served notice on Russia that Korea is not an isolated incident in which America will fight; that aggression will be resisted by force wherever it appears; and that the U. S. intends for the force to be sufficient to repel any aggression.

Ten billion more dollars for arms this year, says the President, with the intimation that while the defense effort, she will increase her military aid for Europe five or six times.

Mobilize, say the President to the Atlantic pact nations America will help.

Stand Firm
Stand firm, he says to India, China, the Philippines, Iran, Greece, Turkey and all the other threatened nations—presumably including Yugoslavia.

"The free world has made a clear, through the United Nations that lawless aggression will be met with force. This is the sign ificance of Korea—and it is a significance which cannot be overestimated."

This is a renewal of the notice Russia has been given repeatedly, but which she still seemed inclined to doubt: prior to American intervention in Korea.

The U. S. intends to carry a big stick and not speak softly. To safeguard other areas.

"The attack on the republic of Korea makes it plain beyond all doubt that the international Communist movement is prepared to use armed invasion to conquer independent nations. We must therefore recognize the possibility that armed aggression may take place in other areas."

of the armed forces, the President tells Congress. Call up the National Guard and Reservists as needed, he tells the defense department. Ten billion more dollars, worth right now.

In France and Britain the allied leaders were responding to the call for greater preparedness even before it was issued. In Latin-America, on every continent, the allies of the United Nations were considering what they could throw into the fight.

The temper of the world was clear. Either Communist imperialism would back down or it would find free people everywhere prepared for the showdown.

All-Day Meeting By Extension Club

The Smith Home Economics Extension club held its all day meeting on Wednesday, June 28th, at the home of Mrs. John Colvin, with W. E. Selken as assistant hostess.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. B. F. Mahan. Miss Laura Kruse gave an interesting talk on Roses and how they produce the new strains. Other reports and orders of business were carried out. A contributive luncheon was served to twenty-two members and two visitors.

The afternoon meeting roll call was answered with "An Interesting Place I Would Like to Visit— or Have Been."

The next meeting will be held on July 26th at the home of F. D. Muschany.

American Books 'Uber Alles'

FRANKFURT, Germany.—(AP)—West German book stores are crammed with American books ranging from "Forever Amber" to Gen. Clay's "Decision in Germany."

Over 2,000,000 copies of well-known American books have been sold in West Germany during the last five years and U. S. officials say that sales are steadily increasing.

Popular fiction and literature are the best sellers. Books for children and youth and textbooks for use in schools are also big sellers.

Day to Remember

CHICAGO.—(AP)—It was going to be a day to remember for Policeman Al Butvill and his wife. It was their ninth wedding anniversary. They took their three children and a basket of lunch and went to Lincoln Park.

They saw a seven year old boy fall into a lagoon. Butvill stripped off his trousers, leaped into the water and rescued the youngster. When the Butvills reached their auto, he discovered the key to the car was missing.

So they rode home on public transportation lines. Butvill then ascertained he also had lost the key to his house. Butvill borrowed a ladder and climbed in through a second floor window. All in all, it was, as intended, a day to remember.

Laundry, Canteen, Jewelry Importing Help Business College Teach Business

IT'LL ALL COME OUT IN THE WASH at Leicester's laundry. The students get their clothes cleaned and learn business methods at the same time.

By NEA Service
LEICESTER, Mass.—(NEA)—It is entirely possible for a student over the lawn, for two cents of Leicester College of Business apiece.

Administration to graduate with a good education, a diploma and a handsome profit as well.

Because it specializes in turning out men for business careers, Leicester has organized the "Leicester end of the job in sight, the boys' Associates" to provide a practical proving-ground for business. The associates, which is a legal corporation, helps students run several businesses.

If a student has an idea for a money-making enterprise, he applies to the associates. If they think it will work, they advance him an interest-free loan. The student takes it from there, with the associates always at hand for advice and assistance.

Under this set-up, a college laundry was organized that is now a flourishing enterprise. Another student set up a hot plate in his room and began serving hamburgers. From this, with the help of the associates, has blossomed a canteen that now embraces a well-equipped student lounge and a complete modern kitchen.

Hand-made jewelry was imported from Iran by a student from that country. Gaining experience in advertising and merchandising, a group of Leicester students marketed the jewelry by mail and also distributed it in stores in the nearby cities.

One of the most spectacular associates-supported ventures was a wrecking project. Two seniors formed a partnership to salvage the wreckage of a fire-ravaged mansion. They underbid professional house wreckers, and the associates promptly loaned them $200.

With the money, they bought an old truck and began hauling away the debris. They uncovered the boilers and sold them for more than $800, then sold the pipes, fittings and railings for more.

With this money, they bought a newer truck, attached a rope to it, and proceeded to pull the chimney of a successful venture.

on of a successful venture." Not all the associates' efforts turn out successfully, however. Some have lost money. But even these are chalked up as good, sound business experience for the student businessmen.

Sweetheart of Beta Pi Is a Spry Gal of 83

By JACK HARR
and in point of service
NEA Staff Correspondent
SHE'S Mrs. Minnie Raymond, 83, BELLEVILLE, W. Va. (NEA) — The who has coedited, guided, advised, sweetheart of Beta Theta Pi, and once paid-by-picks for two-ternity at Beta College is a generations of Beta men in the housemother the members claim past 39 years is the oldest in the nation in age. A letter since 1911 among the women who make their living by being parents-away-from-home for college students she loves her work and is still going strong. Her philosophy? "It's no trouble for a good woman to do one more thing than it's no trouble for me to do 80 men."

Mrs. Raymond took her position when her husband was forced to go to work because of tuberculosis. At first she did the cooking and mending for the men, but now she acts as hostess and nurse-maid to them.

In recent years many sons of men she had 25 or 30 years before have passed into the grave. At present there are three men in the Beta chapter at Beta College whose fathers knew Mrs. Raymond 30 years ago.

Comparing the generations she thinks the college student of today is fundamentally the same as the college student of 39 years ago. "Society's changed, but not the boys with their individual problems and goals," she says.

Mrs. Raymond herself and active sons have not changed that much. She has changed in the eventful years of this half-century—the "superiority" of the female sex. She's seen it demonstrated repeatedly in the various romances which have sprung up involving her "boys," she says.

Mrs. Raymond claims she is failing to remember all the men whom she watched through the formative college years since 1911. She had a chance to reminisce with a plenty of them as they gathered at Beta College for the 30th anniversary of the chapter.

Wants to Make it Hot For You New Styles Disguise Figure Faults

It's 180 Degrees in a Sauna, But Pleasant

Home, Sweat Home for the Ellis family is their private sauna. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis and their daughters, Susan, 4, and Cecilia, 6, all take a regular session in the hot room.

By NEA Service

MIDDLEFIELD, Conn.—(NEA)—Baby, it's hot inside—it's 180 degrees, as a matter of fact. But it's a very pleasant 180 degrees and there are them as claim to love every last degree of it.

The "it" is an importation from Finland, called a "sauna," pronounced like lawn-a. The sauna is a steam bath, halfway between the Turkish and Russian steam baths.

The object of the sauna is to make you feel good. If you want, you can use it as a means of losing a few pounds. In Finland, where there is a sauna for every seven persons, the inhabitants make a point of saunas once a week.

They slosh water on the hot stones, and lie on a bench in the vapor. They switch themselves with the "vihta," or birch switch, which is supposed to aid the circulation of the blood. And then they go outside and drive into a snowbank on the ocean, a practice the Finns say is very invigorating.

An American of English birth, Cecil Ellis, fell in love with the sauna on a trip to Finland. He also fell in love with a Finnish girl. He brought them both back to America with him.

The girl is now his wife, and the sauna is his business. He figured that the Americans might like to feel as good as the Finns. And there might be some who'd want to use the contraption for reducing purposes.

Apparently he was right. He formed a company which builds saunas. They'll put one on your property for what Ellis says is a moderate fee—"about what a new car costs." And the one he built for himself is doing a good business with people who want to sample life in a hothouse.

As Ellis builds them—and he says he uses the ancient methods the Finns have perfected—the sauna is a three-room bungalow, plus vestibule. There is a dressing room, "hot room," and shower room. In the hot room is the stove.

What makes the 180 degree temperature bearable is the low moisture content, which must be kept down to 30 per cent. The secret of keeping the heat dry is in the art of building the sauna. In Finland, the sauna-building business is passed down from generation to generation.

Another secret is for the person sauna-ing to be as near the ceiling as possible. So the hot room is elevated above the other rooms. Ellis' saunas have a raised hot room, reached by about four stairs.

If you want to lose pounds, the idea is not to eat for a few hours after your exposure to the heat. Each trip to the sauna stimulates the appetite and also takes off about three pounds. If you hold back temptation for a few hours, the weight loss is permanent.

But if you want to sauna for health's sake, Ellis advises, a hearty meal right after your visit. His wife, Kaarina, says the Finns believe the sauna helps in the treatment of arthritis, rheumatism, neuritis and sinus infections, but Ellis himself makes no such claims. He does think, however, that the intense perspiration rids the skin of impurities. A word of caution to prospective sauna-ists: It's supposed to be healthier and more invigorating if you sauna in the nude. Above all, don't take anything metal—not even a wrist-watch—in with you. Your skin can take the heat, but you're liable to burn yourself if you touch a metal object that's been exposed to that temperature.

Rangoon Fights Obscene Books

RANGOON—(AP)—Police here have begun a drive against the increasing sale of obscene books and have proclaimed heavy punishment for those writing them. These books, written by Burmese authors, are sold in the city by myriads of pavement shops cluttering the movie house district. It is estimated that 5,000 new books are published every month. Many of them are of the "true confession" type heavily accenting sex. Some try to go around the law through advocating health through nudism.

Authoritarian Personality Meek

BERKELEY, Calif.—(AP)—The authoritarian personality belongs to a meek person who is looking for someone to boss him. This is the conclusion of R. Nevitt Sanford and Elsie Frenkel-Brunswick of the University of California. They have put their ideas into a book after several years of research on the problem. They also think this type of personality has a rigid outlook on life and a marked lack of insight. They think such a personality is the result of harsh discipline by parents.

NEW YORK — Swimming suits which "slenderize, supply light figure control and yet are in the fashion swim are a boon to any woman with figure problems. Such suits help to eliminate a reluctance to go near a beach.

One suit (left) is designed to make its wearer look pencil slim through use of a "V" panel which creates this illusion. Side-boning provides the support to the center-shirred bra in this deep sea blue satin lastex suit. For those who prefer not to wear a topless suit, there is an optional halter tie.

Another suit (right) whose purpose also is to conceal figure faults, is cut with a plunging neckline which will stay put and provide the necessary uplift at the same time. The sunburst shirring

Increase Armed Forces

Senate And House Committees Get Way Cleared For Buildup

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—Congressional Armed Services committee today cleared for Senate and House action legislation to lift the ceilings on size of the armed forces and extend all enlistments for one year.

Senator Tydings (D-Md.) told a reporter he would try to get both bills before the Senate as soon as possible.

"We might even be able to act today," he added, although this appeared unlikely.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House committee said he would call the bills up for consideration on the floor next Tuesday.

Senate committee action on both bills was unanimous. The House vote on each measure was 18 to 1 with Rep. Towse (R-NJ) casting the opposing vote. Towse explained he wanted to know more about the military situation before voting for the bills.

The committees acted speedily in moving to carry out President Truman's request for expansion of the armed forces—now limited to 2,005,882—to meet the threat of Communist aggression in Korea and wherever it may arise.

There was no delay by both committees on the enlistment extension after navy, army and air force officers said they probably would lose 193,000 trained fighting men during the next year through expiration of voluntary enlistments.

The House committee bill allows Mr. Truman to extend enlistments for one year without specifying any date on which the authority will expire.

The Senate committee bill allows the president to extend the terms of volunteers in the services for a year up until next July 9. That is the date when the present draft or Selective Service Act expires, under which men from 19 through 26 can be called for 21 months duty.

The Senate bill means that a volunteer whose term would expire for example, July 8, 1951, could have his enlistment extended to July 8, 1952. The House measure sets no date for expiration of the extension authority and would allow one-year extensions even beyond July 9, 1951.

In taking the action on the two bills, the Senate committee also agreed to strike from one of them a restriction that the strength of the regular Marine Corps shall not exceed 20 per cent of the authorized size of the regular navy.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.) told his colleagues that under present world conditions he does not believe the United States can have too many marines. The marines are trained for amphibious landings.

The committee action would suspend indefinitely present limitations which fix the top strength of the armed forces at 2,005,882 men.

Extension in Service
The quick action came after Navy, Army and Airforce officers said they probably would lose 193,000 trained fighting men during the next year through expiration of voluntary enlistments.

The Senate committee amended the legislation to make it apply

Charge Forgeries On Checks Here

A state warrant was issued today by Prosecuting Attorney W. F. Brown for T. L. Collins, Cleveland, Ohio, on the charge of forgery. The affidavit alleges that Collins passed a check for $1,568 on the Chase City National Bank of New York City and purchased an automobile from the Bryant Motor Co.

Another check, on the Chase City National Bank was given to the Zurich Jewelry Co. for about $340. He had purchased a Masonic tie chain and a man's Bulova wrist watch at Zurich's. It was also reported that he passed a third check at another local store.

The F.B.I. informed Mr. Brown Friday that Collins had been apprehended in New Mexico and had admitted the forgeries. He will be picked up there for investigation.

Guardman Talks Before JCC Members

Col. James Blue Says National Guard is Ready

The Junior Chamber of Commerce held its regular dinner meeting Thursday evening at 5:15 o'clock in the Pioneer Room over Dan's restaurant. The guest speaker was Col. James Blue of the 35th Division Headquarters of the National Guard.

After the Jaycees' president, Bob Wall, opened the business session, the minutes were read and approved. Letters were read from the various delegates to the state board meeting held here expressing their appreciation of the way they were received in Sedalia. The president showed the new Jaycee buttons to the members. After this Jerry Trotter and Bert Hathaway told the Jaycees about plans for a hamburger stand at the State Fair this year, and that a man had been hired to take care of this stand and run it along with the assistance of the members and their wives. The new members of the club were then introduced.

After the introduction, Bob Younger, who was in charge of the program, introduced the guest speaker for the evening.

History of Guard
Col. Blue's talk revolved around the history of the National Guard. He pointed out that the mission of the National Guard was two-fold, subject to state and federal call. Col. Blue related the National Guard's good record in World War II.

He spoke on the period after the past war, and the re-organization of the National Guard. He related that the number of troops for each state have been increased to about three or four times the size of National Guard strength before the war.

In his closing remarks, the military man said the National Guard had met all its man-power quotas and were ready to do their share in anything that might happen.

Following the talk, Jaycees held an informal discussion on softball, the Jaycee stand they'll sponsor at the fair, and their blood donor campaign.

They then enjoyed a social period.

Smith States About $10,000 To Campaign

Governor Says He's 'Been Sold Down the River'

JEFFERSON CITY, July 21.—(AP)—Gov. Forrest Smith said today contributions to his personal primary campaign in 1948 totaled about $10,000 from all sources.

He said none of the money came from gamblers or other law violators — a charge he termed "loose talk."

Smith's campaign funds have come into the news since the Kefauver crime investigating committee started its probe of connections between crime and politics. One of the things the committee has expressed an interest in is the flow between the late Chas. Brannigan, slain Kansas City Democratic leader, and the state administration.

"I have never been approached since directly or indirectly by anyone asking me to be joined, or in the line of gambling or any other law violation," Smith told his news conference.

"But I'm satisfied that I've been sold down the river by a lot of people making promises that I know nothing about."

He said he did not know who those people were but had an idea about some of them.

The governor said the primary gifts ranged from $5 to $1,000 and 90 per cent of them came from his employees in the state auditor's office, his former employees or state employees.

He declined to identify any of the contributors because he said, "it might be embarrassing to some of these people for business reasons."

Would Show List
Smith offered to show newsmen a list which he said included all contributions to his personal campaign if they would promise not to publish any of the names or the amounts. Newsmen declined to inspect it on this "off the record" basis.

"I'd like for you to see it," the governor said. "I think it would be interesting to you."

Agree on Plan 'Pay-as-we-go'

Committee is For Immediate Tax Increase

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The Senate-House economic committee agreed unanimously today that federal taxes should be increased immediately to put the country on a pay-as-we-go basis in the Korean crisis.

The committee discussed no figures, but Chairman O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) told reporters he feels each individual's tax bill should be "acked up 10 per cent at once."

"At least that," O'Mahoney added.

The committee holds what amounts to an advisory position on all economic matters.

Actual tax legislation is handled by separate House and Senate groups.

115,000 Reserves Subject to Call In 13-State Area

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP)—Fifth Army headquarters announced today that more than 115,000 reserves in its 13-state area are subject to immediate call to active duty.

About 47,000 of the reservists are officers.

The National Guard has 73,700 men in eight Guard divisions and smaller units in the same area. It has not been called to active duty.

Here is the lineup of Army reserve officers and enlisted strength and unit numbers of guard divisions and regimental combat teams in Kansas and Missouri:

State Res. Off. Enl. men Guard Strength
Units
2nd & 3rd Div. 10th & 11th Div.
Missouri 15,128 3,054 35th Div. 3,095

Officers at Fifth Army here said Army reservists with critically needed specialties will be called. The number will be set in Washington.

The first orders summoning the Navy's organized reservists in this area were being prepared at North Naval district headquarters at Great Lakes Naval Training Center.

Start Call of Some Guards And Reserves

Units And Exact Number Being Kept Secret

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The army today began calling some National Guard troops and reserves to active duty. The units and the exact number were kept secret.

It announced the men called would be given at least 30 days to get their personal affairs in order.

The announcement said "non-divisional" units would be called. There was no formal explanation for this decision, but the situation is this:

A National Guard division is ordinarily made up entirely of men from one state. A few states have more than one division. Some do not have an entire division.

There might be political repercussions if, for instance, all the guardsmen in one state were called up as a division while no guardsmen in an adjoining state were placed on active duty.

By taking smaller units from several states, the strength in manpower of a full division can be put on active duty with each state contributing a part of the force.

It is the first time in the National Guard's history that only a part of it has been taken into federal service. The entire Guard was called out in 1916 for Mexican border duty, in 1917 for the first World War and in 1949 for World War Two.

Progressive Plan
The announcement said that the Army does not contemplate at this time calling units the size of a division.

The brief announcement said: "The department of the Army is in the process of progressively calling non-divisional elements of

US Forces Dig In New Defense Positions In Hills East of Taejon

Fellow Officers Feel General W. F. Dean 'Will Get Out'

AN AMERICAN COMMAND

POST IN KOREA, July 21.—(AP)—Fellow officers today held firm hope that Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, unreported nearly 24 hours in the thick of the Taejon fighting, "will get out."

But fear for his safety grew by the hour. The front-line fighting commander of the U. S. 24th Infantry division was last reported leading a bazooka team fighting off Red tanks.

Dean's staff tried to reassure themselves with this declaration:

"The general can take care of himself. He may have to walk, but he'll get out!"

Said Capt. Ralph Vargason of Newark Valley, N. Y.: "All of our regular bazooka teams were so busy General Dean took a couple of men downtown and went after two tanks. I saw him passing ammunition to the men and directing fire."

Another story of Dean's heroism under close fire came from Pvt. Alfred Vessels, 18, Stanton, (Please turn to Page 3, Column 1)

Costly Gain to Enemy; New Thrusts Awaited By the Defenders

By the Associated Press

American Negro Infantrymen knocked the North Korean Communists out of Yechon, important rail center on the central sector, in a power drive today, but their buddies to the southwest retreated from flaming Taejon to new defense positions.

By the Associated Press

Harassed by a hail of sniper and enemy artillery fire, American troops dug into new South Korean defense positions today and braced for expected new Communist thrusts from at least three directions.

The battered 24th Division, its commanding major general among the missing, took up hill positions several miles east of flaming Taejon, captured by the Communists in a heavy tank and artillery drive. The GI's hoped to hold these new positions until 21.—(P)—U. S. Negro troops today American strength builds up bedeviled North Korean Communists out of Yechon and occupied that rail and highway city. It was the first sizeable American ground victory in the Korean war.

The Negro doughboys captured Yechon after a 16-hour battle which began yesterday afternoon and ended shortly after dawn today. Our casualties were light. The extent of enemy losses was unknown.

Yechon is 60 miles northeast of Taejon and 55 miles north of Taegu. (General MacArthur's Friday afternoon communique had said one regiment of the South Korean capital division counterattacked and retook Yechon from the Communists. It is not clear from this story whether the South Koreans again lost the city and it was retaken again by the U. S. Negro soldiers.)

Today at Yechon was a far different story from the past few dark days when gallant but outnumbered 24th division soldiers, battled the surging Reds farther west as United Nations forces traded space for time.

In the Yechon action, the power and strength of the U. S. assault made it look as if the period of trading time for space is over.

The battle began yesterday afternoon when the U. S. task force moved against the city which nestles in a cup of a mountain ridge. Crouched on a hillside in a soybean patch with Capt. Carlton S. Johnson of Chester, Pa., and Sgt. Kenneth E. Brown of La Mesa, Tex., I watched the assault.

Under a barrage of artillery and mortar fire which splashed fire into villages on the slopes of the mountain beyond Yechon, two companies began a flanking move—a tactic which the Reds previously have used successfully.

To the west, small groups of soldiers leaped it across the rice fields. A machine gunner ran heavily up the slopes and into a grove of trees. There was silence for a moment, then the guns opened up.

Directly north, down a deserted road into Yechon, the colored soldiers stalked warily into clusters of houses, firing as they went.

To the east, a small knot of soldiers clustered about a small mud hut, then broke into sudden life and the men dove into fields for cover as a machine gun rattled.

Bitter Two-Day Battle
Communist tanks and troops had stormed into the flaming key rail junction at Taejon after a bitter two-day battle which cost the Reds dearly. One front report, one confirmed, said four American-made tanks, possibly lend-lease material given Russia in World War II, had been used by the Communists in the Taejon drive.

Red Forces had wheeled in position for a flanking attack, apparently in considerable force, but they would have had to travel some distance without tanks to reach U. S. positions, a thing they seem reluctant to do. Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said a flanking movement was developing 20 miles southwest of the fallen former provisional capital, but the Air Force might "prevent this development from becoming a serious threat."

On the east coast American and British cruisers shelled and knocked out the Communist communications center at Yongdok, 25 miles north of the beachhead held by Americans of the mechanized First Cavalry Division.

Notices Sent to Twenty by The Draft Board

Are to Report in Kansas City on Thursday, Aug. 30

Twenty young men in Pettis County of draft age received notices today to report to Kansas City on August 30 for physical examinations, according to Mrs. Leonard Williams, clerk of the local Selective Service Board.

The group will be taken to Kansas City by bus. Those who received notices were taken from a group of single men, non-fathers, non-veterans, closest to 26 years of age.

All men, upon reaching their 18th birthday, are required to register with the Selective Service Board, located at 5004 South Ohio avenue, above the Safeway market.

Those who are married or are divorced change their marital status and subsequently must report such changes to the board. All changes of address are also to be reported. The offices remain open every day, with the exception of Saturday, from 8:00 to 5:00, except for the 12:00 to 1:00 noon hour.

The board will meet Monday for the purpose of classifying a new group. Its members are William H. Bunn, chairman, Charles Burns McElroy and Mayor Herb E. Studebaker. William F. Brown is the government appeal agent.

Korea War Revives Bitter Feud Among Tank Experts

The Big Ones: Stalin 122mm; Patton 90mm

Russian Heavy: The 57-ton Joseph Stalin III was first used in Poland in 1945. Experts claim we still can't match it and fear Russia may be trying out something even better in Korea.

American Heavy: The 47 1/2-ton Patton has a smaller gun and probably less armor protection than the Joseph Stalin III. Mass production of bigger U.S. tanks is "several years" away.

Staff Gen. Joe Collins let it slip at a press conference that the U.S. had several new tanks which would be better than anything a potential enemy might have. Unfortunately, the army admits now these new type tanks couldn't be available in any mass quantity "for several years."

A Pentagon authority says that the first thing a tank man asks for is a good gun. The Russian JS-III has a 120mm. cannon. The U. S. Army's heaviest M-48 "Patton" tank has a smaller 90 mm. gun.

Next most important quality in a tank is armor. The Russian JS-III has a front plate 3.9 inches thick, sides 3.9 inches thick. The thickness of armor on the Patton is a classified secret. But over-all weight of the two tanks gives the clue. The JS-III weighs upwards of 57 tons; the Patton is classed as 47 1/2 tons.

British, French and U. S. experts scoffed at the first big Russian tanks they saw during World War II. The thickness of the armor seemed to vary on each tank. Those who have made the decision on our tank policy, however, have some strong arguments on their side. They point out that the ultimate outcome of a war is the important thing. As the U. S. conceives warfare and has planned for it, the heavy tank alone is not likely to be a deciding factor. It is still to be proved in Korea whether or not the airplane and anti-tank weapons are a more effective weapon against a tank offensive than a lot of big opposing tanks.

Russian tanks were also laughed at for the amount of maintenance they required in the field. Some of them carried a spare differential, lashed to the back. And it turned out that they were in the repair shop much more than U. S. tanks. But the Reds set up a highly efficient field maintenance system which helped to overcome this difficulty.

• The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Oklahoma Voters Catch Up With Wickersham

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON.—Down in Oklahoma they aren't letting the Korean war make them forget about the importance of clean politics. Not only have they got wise to the speculations of Senator Thomas, but the only Oklahoma Congressman who failed of re-election on July 4 was Victor Wickersham of Mangum, who enjoyed some peculiar arrangements with his employees which had all the earmarks of the same salary kickbacks that landed Congressman Parnell Thomas in jail.

As a result of these salary arrangements, Oklahoma voters got suspicious of Congressman Wickersham, and the seven opponents running against him got more votes than he did. Now he faces a run-off.

The FBI has been investigating Wickersham, who, incidentally, happens to be a Democrat, while Parnell Thomas is a Republican. I have also been probing Wickersham, and can report that one of the young men hired by the Congressman under peculiar circumstances has now received a pay-off.

He is Lloyd Matthews, who worked in the Congressman's real estate office in Washington, though his salary was paid by the American people to handle congressional matters.

On the same day I first exposed Wickersham's payroll padding—Dec. 12, 1949—young Matthews wrote a letter to his friend Aubrey Witt, another member of Wickersham's staff, in which he said:

"Mr. Wickersham finally reached me tonight after several efforts and undying persistence. He told me," continued Matthews, "to do exactly what I had planned to do anyway, keep my mouth shut. Amazing how a man's magnanimity increases in direct proportion to the duress under which he is subjected. He, out of the clear blue sky, asked me how I would like to help with the census. . . . His remark was plainly forced, but he said it. . . . Adding whipped cream to the desert, he continued: 'How would you like to go to West Point?'"

Pearson's a "liar."

Down in Oklahoma, the Congressman has been answering salary kickback exposures with the routine answer given by most Washington bigwigs when caught in a tight corner—namely, "Pearson is a liar."

However, if the facts I reported had not been correct, the Congressman could have taken me to the legal cleaners; instead of which he hastened to give the man he wanted to keep quiet, a West Point pay-off. Wickersham gave Matthews the earliest possible appointment to West Point, and he entered this year's batch of plebes, July 5, 1950.

It also appears that Matthews kept his part of the bargain "to keep my mouth shut." For he denied to the FBI that he paid any kickbacks to Wickersham, though his good friend, Aubrey Witt, formerly employed by Wickersham, told the FBI otherwise.

Furthermore, the salary arrangement: Matthews had with the Congressman looked most peculiar. Matthews was a youngster just out of high school when on June 1, 1949, the Congressman offered him a job at $200 a month. Instead of paying him $200, however, Matthews' salary check was for $480 a month.

Now most people, even Congressmen, don't pay a youngster just out of high school at the rate of $480 a month, or $115 a week. And the real question is whether Matthews kicked back $260 a month to Wickersham's pocket.

The money, of course, came from all the taxpayers and was supplied to the Congressman so he could efficiently run his congressional office and help his constituents back in Oklahoma. Instead, he had Matthews work in his real estate office in Washington, paying him at the inflated rate of $480 a month, after offering him only $200 a month.

So a lot of people are wondering why you pay a young man $480 a month when he is quite willing to work for $200 a month?

NOTE—Congressman Wickersham also paid James W. Taylor $7,720 of the taxpayers' money supposedly to work in his office—though actually Taylor spent his time traveling as a salesman for the Herd Equipment Co. of Oklahoma City. A lot of voters would also like to know what the salary arrangement was between Wickersham and Taylor.

Two Kickbacks
But, believe it or not, this wasn't all. Here are two entirely new salary arrangements the Congressman had, definitely involving kickbacks.

In March and April of last year, he put two young constituents, Steve Fisher and Phil Symcox of Cordell, Okla., on the federal payroll. However, they didn't report for work until two months later—June and July, 1949. Meanwhile, the Congressman had held their March and April paychecks for $250 each, which he paid them after they started work.

He explained, however, that they were supposed to work for $165 a month so that the checks really covered a six-week period. This, of course, was not true, but Wickersham used it as an excuse to demand kickbacks from both boys.

For after they finished two months work and decided to go home, Wickersham explained that they had not put in a full six-week period for each $250 check and demanded a kickback of $127 from each.

This was paid directly to him, whereas their original salary checks were paid them by the U.S. Treasury. Thus the Congressman was in a position to pocket the $254 or $127 from each. Fisher and Symcox, when reached by telephone, verified the above facts. They also said that immediately after this column first exposed Wickersham's payroll peculiarities last December, they received mysterious receipts for the $127 each which, on the reverse side, stated that the money had been spent for addressing envelopes.

In other words, six months after Fisher and Symcox kicked back to the Congressman, and after part of his payroll activities had been exposed, Wickersham hastily arranged for receipts which could serve as an alibi if he were charged with pocketing the kickback money.

The great majority of Congressmen, and after part of his payroll activities had been exposed, Wickersham hastily arranged for receipts which could serve as an alibi if he were charged with pocketing the kickback money.

The great majority of Congressmen, in the opinion of this observer, do not indulge in payroll irregularities. They use the office allotments given them by the government to run their offices efficiently and for the benefit of their constituents.

However, one or two rotten apples in Oklahoma and Georgia can spoil a whole barrel.

Byrnes Has Qualifications to Lead De-centralization Fight

By Bruce Blossat

James F. Byrnes, sure how to be governor of South Carolina, has won the chance he sought to combat what he sees as the excessive growth of government in Washington.

President Truman and his chief supporters scoff at the notion that power has become too greatly centralized in the capital.

Many leading Republicans, on the other hand, have been shouting for years that the federal government is devouring all before it, that this trend can only lead to a crushing of individual liberties and the establishment of socialism.

Unfortunately, the very repetition of this cry has tended to weaken its force steadily through the years. Voters going to the polls in national elections have not seemed greatly moved by GOP alarms.

The 71-year-old Byrnes is far from being the first Democrat to join this debate. But no man at once so distinguished and so well-versed in the practice of politics has ever taken up the fight.

With service on the Supreme Court, in the Senate, as secretary of state and as war mobilizer and "assistant president" behind him, there are no mere political laurels Byrnes could seek which would be worth his trouble.

It is fair to assume, therefore, that he will take up the issue of over-centralization in Washington strictly on its merits. Into that contest he will throw his admittedly great prestige, which goes well beyond the limits of party.

If there is truth in the claims that Washington is over-reaching, monopolizing the vital sources of government revenue, bulldozing its way through powers that rightly belong to the states and cities, every freedom-loving American ought to hope Jimmy Byrnes can help establish the facts beyond question.

And if those facts can be proved, we should further wish him well in any efforts he may undertake to redress the balance and return to local and state governments the powers they have lost.

In the event it comes down to that Byrnes could not hope to do the job alone, nor would he likely try. But his stature among the governors of the 48 states will be high; he will be able to enlist their vigorous support provided his cause is just and his right one that should be made for the good of the country.

It's hard to see where a better champion than Byrnes could be found for a point of view that has been crying for responsible leadership for nearly two decades.

Cannon, Not Candy, for Morale

Among the reports filtering back from Army headquarters in the Far East is one which tells us that the military has moved swiftly to set up post exchanges and establish other "morale-building" facilities in embattled Korea.

Looking at pictures of American soldiers shot in the face by savage North Koreans, reading the regular accounts of our troops' withdrawals under superior enemy fire and weight of metal, we couldn't help wondering if morale wouldn't be boosted more by a few "Long Tom" artillery pieces than by PX's complete with candy and chewing gum.

JESUS, THE STANDARD NOTE

We have seen that sin is not only bad; it is also foolish. The opposite is true—goodness is not only good; it is also wisdom. That is the reason Jesus identified Himself with Wisdom: "Nevertheless Wisdom is vindicated by all that she does." He had just been talking about Himself. He asserted Himself to be Wisdom, and added, "Life approves of that statement for it approves, vindicates all I do." The emphasis is upon that word "all"—not here and there was He hitting eight notes, but never did He miss the right note. When He and His teaching are put under life to see what the verdict will be, there is but one verdict—He is vindicated by all that He does.

Paul takes up the same note and says, "Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God." Note that he connects the two—power and wisdom. They are bound to be connected. For the sum total of Reality is bound wisdom—the whole moral universe cackles it. Sinner or later wisdom is bound to win. The opposite is true—sin and weakness are inseparably connected for the sum total of Reality is against evil. Sooner or later it is bound to fail. Evil has the seeds of its own decay within itself. In evil I cannot win; in good I cannot lose. The stars in their courses work against sin. The stars in their courses work on behalf of good. These are a saying that "only the stars are neutral." But the stars are not neutral—nature is on the side of good and will not respond to evil. Goodness is wisdom; and goodness is power.

In Washington there is struck over the radio each day the note A 443 as the standard note by which the nation is to tune its instruments. Everything that departs from that note is discord. Everything that tunes to that note catches the music of the spheres; everything that departs from it is discord and torture. God does not inflict any torture. The departure itself produces the torture. It is inherent.

O Christ, Thou Standard Note of all human living, forgive me that I have tried to live against that Note. The result has inevitably and invariably been discord and inner torture. I tune my life fully and wholly to Thee from this hour, Amen.

New Vitamin Shows Promise Of Aiding Children's Growth

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

New vitamins keep on being discovered. Now it is vitamin B-12 which is the most exciting. It looks as though this vitamin will prove particularly useful to physicians in their treatment of a number of serious or troubling conditions.

One of the important uses of vitamin B-12 seems to be for pernicious anemia. This is the form of anemia which 30 years ago was almost always fatal in the long run, but which for many years has been successfully treated in most cases with liver preparations.

Now vitamin B-12 (which, thanks to our scientists, is now available in pure crystalline form) seems to be even better than liver preparations for pernicious anemia.

These youngsters were given the vitamin B-12 and its results have proved helpful in some advanced cases of pernicious anemia with nerve changes which have not responded in the same fashion, but this may have been caused by an insufficient quantity of the vitamin.

There is much still to be done on vitamin B-12 and its relationship to growth in children. There is a real possibility, however, that this vitamin can be used successfully in at least some children whose growth is abnormally slow.

No parent should rush out and try to buy vitamin B-12 in the hope of stimulating the growth of a youngster. Nevertheless, the scientific progress which is being made in the study of aiding growth by the aid of this vitamin may mean a lot of these days.

Dr. Jordan will answer questions from his readers in a special column once a week. Watch for it.

If Need Be

XL
ALTHOUGH Dusty Rhodes was wounded, he wasn't hurt badly and, while he had obviously come to see Little Doc to have the wound dressed, the doctor knew that there was another reason for his being here.

Toad had witnessed the little scene in front of the office when Little Doc had kissed Kit. Toad, who had reason to hate Little Doc and Dusty Rhodes as well, would have been the man to keep silent about it. The story could have been embellished and reported to Dusty in such a way that Dusty's feelings toward Little Doc would not be charitable to say the least. And Toad would be very happy if Dusty shot up Doc and went to jail for it.

Dusty eyed Little Doc a moment and then stepped into the office. "You want me back to town, Doc?" he drawled. "But I'm glad you did. I got a little job for you—providing my credit's still good. I can't even pay you for the last time you patched me up."

The grin remained on Dusty's mouth but his eyes were not smiling. "Let's take off your shirt and see what's what," Little Doc said. He helped the cowpuncher shed his shirt. Then he sponged the bullet rip along Dusty's shoulder muscle. "No bad," said Little Doc, crossing the room to get his antiseptic solution from the medicine cabinet. "We'll have you fixed up so you can go back to the round-up."

"I knew it wasn't bad, Doc," Dusty spoke again. He eyed the doctor. "Say, you sure got the Old Warehouse swamped out. Doc. Dutten John told me you've been busy as a bird dog, too. Night and day, he said. You must be makin' money."

"Not money, but a living," said Doc, spilling a little of the antiseptic on some cotton. "Very few people pay me in cash, you know. But I get goods and services aplenty. He grinned a little as he applied antiseptic to the wound. "But I hadn't thought about the money end of it. All money is good for is to buy medicine and supplies from the druggist over in Glasgow. My patients give me everything else I need. My credit's still good with the druggist."

DUSTY RHODES winced as the antiseptic bit into his raw wound. Then he said, "How do you expect to pay the druggist and support a wife besides Doc?" His voice had lost its drawl.

"Wife? What wife, Dusty?" "You know what wife. Quit stalling. We're talking about Kit."

Doc took a roll of bandages out of his bag and started to apply it to Dusty's wound. "Kit doesn't want to marry me, Dusty," he said. "She likes somebody else better." "Someone else?" Dusty's voice was incredulous.

"Yes, Dusty. She's waiting for you now, over at her house," Doc said, fastening the bandage with adhesive tape. "There, your arm's fixed. You'd better get over there right away and see her."

Dusty thumbed back the hat off his sweat-matted hair. "Let me get this straight, Doc." "There's nothing to get straight. Dusty. Kit likes you better. She told me so. You're getting a mighty fine girl for a wife, Dusty. The best there is, in my book."

Dusty seized Doc's hand and pumped vigorously. "Honest? Why I've asked that girl to marry me so many times that I've lost count. Why didn't she say yes?" "Maybe she didn't know till she had someone else around for comparison," Doc replied. "Ask her again and she'll take you up on it."

"I'm glad that slimy Toad was lyin' when he told me I'd lost my girl," Dusty looked up at Little

Doc again. "Can I borrow a shirt, Doc? I'm in a hurry." "Sure," said Doc. "But first, spill the news. What happened to Toad?"

"Constable Butch Bell found a cabin with a dead man inside. Me and Toad were lookin' for Long Andy and so it wasn't accidental when we found him. It turned out to be a little gun ruckus. Long Andy hated the sneaking Toad and shot him on sight, but Toad lasted long enough to put a bullet in Long Andy's head. During the smoke, I got nicked in the arm by a stray chunk of lead. I left Butch to bring in the two dead men, while I got patched up. And—Dusty paused—and I wanted to ask you a question or two, but I've got the answers now."

"Toad cheated Kit out of her hotel," Doc said.

"Yes, Butch told me," said Dusty. "And the deal was a fraud. Kit will get back the hotel. It seems that Blackjack Lambert forged some LOU's and told her they were given to him by her father for gambling debts to him and Toad. I shot Blackjack that night and that's partly the reason, but he was tryin' to cold-deck me in a game too. Toad took the LOU's to Kit and she gave him the hotel."

"And yet you let Toad tell you things about Kit?"

"When a man likes a girl he don't use common sense," said Dusty.

BROWNIE appeared just as Little Doc found a clean shirt for Dusty, and added:

"Brownie wants a job punching cows. Dusty. He's a friend of mine."

"If you're a friend of Doc's you got the job, Brownie," said Dusty. Brownie shook his head. "No, Mr. Rhodes. I can't take it. I throwed in with Long Andy and Sherry on a horse-stealing deal."

"You must've had a good reason."

"He was broke and he had a wife and baby in Chinook," Doc explained.

"But you wouldn't want to hire a horse thief, Mr. Rhodes," said Brownie.

Remember These Tips, Girls, And Keep Your Hubbies Happy

How to get long with a husband—particularly middle-aged women—get into the habit of treating their husbands much as they treat their children. They weight them down with advice and reminders, and treat their ideas with amusement rather than with respect.

Throttle Down the Yakety-Yak
Don't talk him to death. Men are big talkers when they are with other men and they like to talk when they are trying to impress an attractive woman—but the sad truth is that the average man, once he is married to a woman, can get along with very little conversation when the two of them are alone. Give him too much and he'll look for ways of escape—even if it's only behind the evening paper.

Don't try to be his conscience. The wife who thinks it is her duty to try to make her husband better than he is or wants to be isn't much fun to live with.

Don't bother him when he's at work, even if the work he is concentrating on at the moment doesn't seem terribly to you. Men hate to be interrupted when they are concentrating on a problem or working at a job as much as a child hates to be interrupted at play—and they are usually just as resentful of the interruption.

Never remind him that you said something wouldn't work, when it doesn't. It won't build up your ego half as much as it deflates his—so it isn't worth the price. (All rights reserved, NEA Service, Inc.)

Texas. Vessels told how teen-age American soldiers fought and knocked out Red tanks under Dean's personal leadership.

These young soldiers finally retreated only when the general himself gave the word, Vessels related.

The Texan said he "slow one Red tank to hell" with his new 3.5 inch rocket launcher—and hit three more.

"Poured It On" Tank
The general spotted a tank in a yard and called me over," Vessels said. Under Dean's direction,

There whereabouts of Gen. William F. Dean (above), the commander of the 24th division, which has withdrawn from Taejon in South Korea, was unknown July 20. He had been at the front all day. At one time he was seen with a tank-destroying squad. (AP Wirephoto)

he moved his launcher to the second story window of a building in flaming Taejon.

"From there we poured it on and the tank started smoking. We kept after it with our 3.5 and that was the end of that tank."

Vessels fled from Taejon only after the general said "I want all of you boys to get out."

The young Texan said he saw Dean knock out a Red automatic rifle with his .45 caliber automatic.

"I saw him do it and, brother, that's shooting!"

"The whole town was burning and we were surrounded by machinegun fire when we pulled out," the boy related. "We found us a South Korean MP (military policeman) and about 100 of us went about 30 miles around and about and that's how we made it."

"But we would go back there in a minute if the Big Guy (Dean) needed us."

Vessels was one of the many teen-age heroes who fought their way out from Taejon in the night.

Happy In Escape
The kids who fled through the night and were happy to escape with their lives were not defeated. They came through a night of death and fire like he-steamboat, but one of his young ones. The inspiration of real leadership was plain in the way they talked and acted today.

The Red tanks moved on Taejon at dawn Thursday. They circled around and around the American command post, firing as they went.

Dean had a record of fearless fighting. Both in World War II and in the Korean war he exposed himself to enemy fire to lead his men.

A few days ago he pulled some of his front line troops out of the fire in heavy fighting near the Kum river by a personally led attack.

Dean, who was awarded a Distinguished Service Cross in World War II for bravery, was well liked by his men. The tall, rusty-haired general put his fighting before his personal safety.

The 50-year-old general had served as military governor of Korea from 1947 to 1949 and temporarily was commander of U. S. Army forces in Korea.

The general was born August 11, 1899 in Carlyle, Clinton county, Ill. People there still remember when the future military leader, then 15 years old, almost drowned in the Kaskaskia river. He was finally pulled aboard a

Casting Out Fear

On many occasions, Christ counselled against fear. He knew there were many fears that could take hold of a man until they worked his destruction—fear of himself, fear of others, fear of suffering and of poverty, fear of failure and of death. Christ's admonitions against fear were not the encouragement of a mere optimist. He recognized that there are things men ought to fear. But He stressed that there are other things which we ought not to fear at all. "Fear ye not them that kill the body and are not able to kill the soul," He said, "but rather fear him that can destroy both soul and body in hell."

Men need to build up their character to resist the inroads of fear. The two basic spiritual conditions necessary to cast out fear are personal integrity and an abiding faith in the things of the spirit.

To meet each day with courage calls for leading a clean and upright life. It demands an awareness of God's solicitude and love. It entails a belief in the sacredness and worth of human personality. It calls for the firm conviction that man was created for the supreme happiness of ultimate and eternal union with God.

Irrational fears bespeak a want of faith in God. Whoever believes firmly in God's wise and beneficent providence is untouched by fear. He knows that the Kingdom of God is possible even on earth; that love is stronger than hate; that the truth is mightier than any lie. Truly, humbly and with confidence he follows Christ because He is "the way, and the truth and the light."

Life is never without trials and difficulties. Some men resort to stoicism to carry them through times of stress and fear. The true Christian, however, does more than bear his burdens calmly. He looks ahead with hope and cheer to ultimate reward and vindication. He is buoyed up by the truth spoken by St. Paul: "To them that love God all things work together unto good."

Samuel: A Child of Prayer

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.
In the story of Samuel, the child born in answer to his mother's earnest prayer and dedicated to the service of God, there are some elements, that are seldom if ever mentioned. It is like to think, for instance, of Hannah, Samuel's father, and the husband of Hannah. I have never known a man called Ekanah, though many men have been called by less honorable Biblical names. Ekanah stands as a conspicuous example of the good husband and devoted lover. According to the custom of the time he had two wives. When childless Hannah reproach and ill treatment of the other wife who had children, Ekanah, finding her weeping and not eating, said to her: "Why is the child so grievously? Am not I better to thee than ten sons?" Surely there spoke the voice of true love. What joy, therefore, when Hannah's prayers for a child were answered with the birth of Samuel. Hannah made good her vow and the child in the temple, serving the High Priest, began a great career as high priest, prophet and leader in Israel. The times were difficult, calling for a leader of strength, courage, and of high integrity. Eli was

Hennings Spoke Up for Veterans

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., July 21.—(P)—Former Congressman Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., came out on Thursday night for a broad re-organization of government, to free America of "the present bewildering maze of overlapping boards, bureaus and commissions."

The St. Louisan, seeking the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator, spoke over radio station KICK here. His chief opponent is State Senator Emory W. Allison of Reila, President Truman's idea of the man to beat incumbent Senator Forrest C. Donnell, a Republican.

"It is the function of our government to serve the people and not to rule them," Hennings said. "Public officials must be our servants, not our masters."

He said the veterans should get all that is due them and quickly—without "unnecessary hardships and delays."

"There is no reason why, for instance, it should take more than five times as long to process a veteran's death claim as it does a claim with a private insurance company."

He pledged that if elected he would support Truman's bipartisan foreign policy and would do all he could to stop the spread of Communism, both within and outside the United States.

He accused Stalin of using the same principle of "divide and rule" that Hitler used.

He said America not only must be strong itself but it must help all other "freedom loving nations" to become strong in order to stop the growth of Communism.

Miss Mary Helen Mayer Back From Holy Year Tour to Rome

Miss Mary Helen Mayer, 240 South Vermont avenue, arrived last Friday in New York returning from a conducted Holy Year tour made by a group made up of 4 priests and 12 lay women and conducted throughout Europe by Elvado Marugg, chief of the courier's department of Lamsar Travel Service (who had just finished escorting Bishop Joseph Marling's group on a tour). The trip was prefaced by a thrilling escape from danger when their big 4-motored plane developed trouble in 2 motors four hours out over the Atlantic and had to limp back 4 1/2 hours to Gander, New Foundland. The succeeding 30 days were liberally sprinkled with religious experiences beginning with the attendance at the June 18th performance of the Passion Play, preceded by Sunday High Mass in the Oberammergau church, in company with the players in the sacred drama. In the choir were the fifty members of the chorus accompanied by the symphony orchestra. The next day Miss Mayer called at the home of the young girl who portrays the part of the Virgin Mary, Annamie Mayer, a distant relative of Miss Mayer's paternal grandfather, who was born near Oberammergau in 1826, but due to disparity of language and lack of an interpreter Miss Mayer was unable to interview her.

Celebrated Holy Day
The next outstanding religious experience was the celebration of the great European holy day of the Feast of St. John the Baptist in the city of Florence, of which he is the patron. There was a colorful procession of many cardinals and high dignitaries with richly and colorfully dressed attendants to the 3rd largest church in the world, St. Mary of the Flower, which the proud Florentines claim is superior to St. Peter's in Rome in beauty and size of its dome. The group arrived in Rome on the evening of the canonization of the modern St. Agnes, Maria Goretti, and joined the rear fringe of the vast throng of 500,000 which extended over 1/4 mile in front of the Basilica back to the Castle San Angelo, the largest number ever to see a canonization, and the first canonization ever to take place outside the Basilica.

Celebrated Early Mass
In order to spiritualize the sight-seeing of the ancient Roman ruins such as the Colosseum and the Forum of Julius Caesar, part of the group led by two Chicago priests in the group, Fathers Shea and Pohlner, made arrangements to celebrate an early mass in a subterranean room in the St. Calixtus Catacombs outside Rome on the old Appian Way. The room assigned to the group was one close to the room where the martyr St. Cecilia was buried and where her body was discovered centuries later. The Catacombs are just as they were in the days when the early persecuted Christians sought refuge in them, subterranean passage ways and rooms and crypts dug out in the earth, unlighted by anything but candles. In the darkness Miss Mayer was able to make the responses in the Mass in Latin from memory.

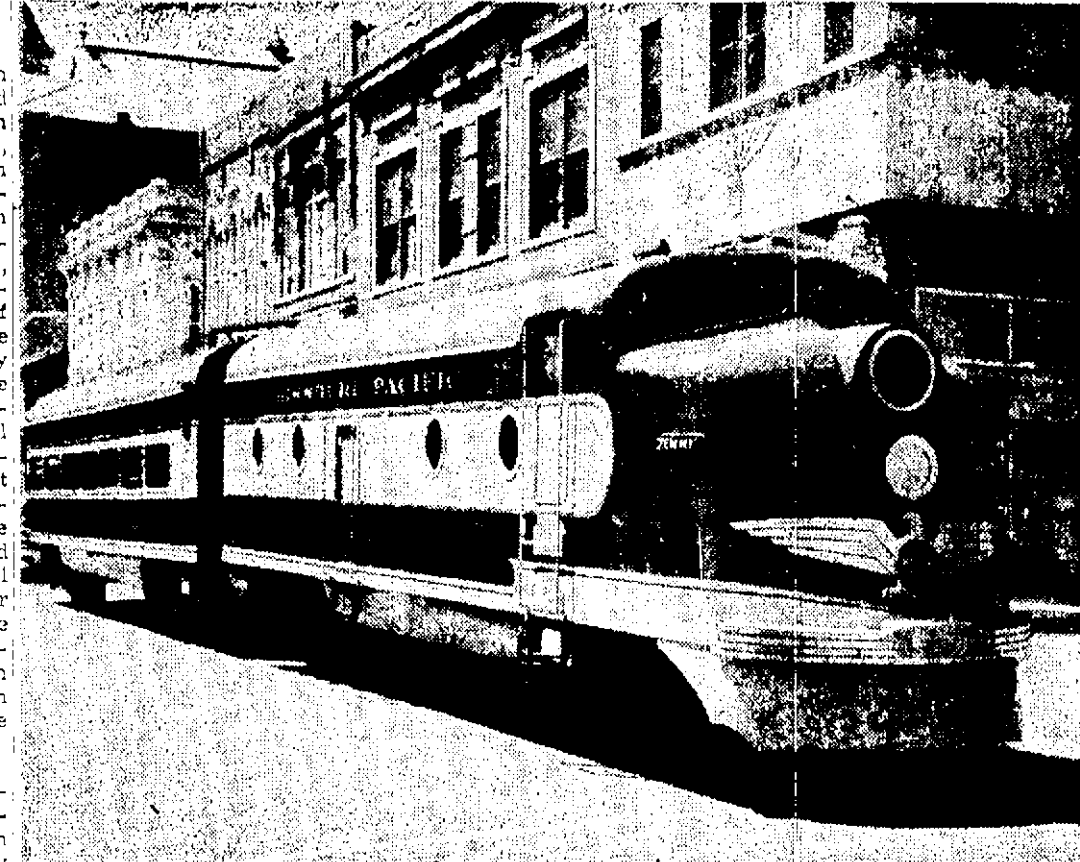

Audience With Pope
The week's stay in Rome was climaxed by an audience with the Holy Father in St. Peter's Basilica on the Vigil of one of the outstanding feast days of the Holy Year, that of St. Peter and Paul. The vast Basilica was solidly packed with an estimated 30,000 pilgrims with large delegations from 18 foreign countries, such as France, Belgium, Holland, Switzerland, England, Ireland, India, Brazil, Turkey, Austria, Denmark. On that evening there were ten groups from the United States large enough to evoke from the Holy Father a special mention and welcome—the pilgrimage groups from New Orleans, Little Rock, Natchez, St. Paul, Covington, Boulder, Duluth, Louisville, Philadelphia, a press group from Detroit, a group of students from Notre Dame University and a Marian Sodality group.

Week-long Celebration
The week was closed by Miss Mayer by attendance at Mass at what is said to be the most magnificent church in Rome, the Jesuit church of the Gesu, where a week-long celebration of the centenary of the Feast of the Most Precious Blood was begun. The Mass was to have been celebrated by Rev. Herbert Kramer, the Director General of the C. P. P. S. order, the Order which has charge of Miss Mayer's home parish, that of Sacred Heart of Sedalia, but Father Kramer was called out of Rome to Innsbruck, Austria, and another Precious Blood priest, from the C. P. P. S. headquarters in Rome at Via Polla, celebrated the Mass.

Three Days at Lourdes
Another religious highlight was a three day stay at the famous shrine of religious healing at Lourdes, France. Here the more religiously inclined members of the group joined another American group carrying the Stars and Stripes in an afternoon procession escorting the Blessed Sacrament, and in the evening they joined in a 1/2 mile long candlelight procession of around 20,000 people each carrying a lighted candle and singing at least the chorus of the Ave, Ave, Ave Maria. Three final religious experiences are worthy of mention, a visit in Paris to the Chapel in which the Virgin Mary appeared to St. Catherine Labouré and revealed the Miraculous Medal, and in Brussels the accidental participation while on a sight-seeing tour in a solemn benediction at the Church of St. Gudule inaugurating a week of celebration of the Sacrament of the Miracle, and finally the attendance at Perpetual adoration in one of the pioneer churches of Amsterdam on the "Kalverstraat" which was celebrating its 500th anniversary with a month long festival during which the clocks in the shops along the street wore medieval costumes.

Interesting Experiences
The trip included such interesting secular experiences as sight-seeing in once proud Munich which was bombed largely by American fliers into a rubble pile because it had the misfortune to be associated with Hitler; three days in a fashionable resort perched high in the mountains near Innsbruck, Austria; a day-light ride through the Dolomite Mountains and Brenner Pass; a midnight transportation ride with bag and baggage by gondola (4 to a gondola) from the station to the Hotel on the Grand Canal, and other gondola rides about Venice and out to the Lido, the fashionable bathing beach; and in Florence a visit to the famous art galleries.

HADACOL GREAT TO BUILD UP WEAK, RUN-DOWN PEOPLE AFTER BEING OPERATED ON!

Helps Convalescents Get Back Strength and Feel Better When Systems Lack Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin
MANY DOCTORS RECOMMEND IT!

Mrs. Francis Burnham,* 414 East Monroe Street, Jacksonville 2, Florida, who had such deficiencies: "I had read about your HADACOL and heard about it on the radio, but I was afraid to try it because I have recently undergone an operation. But after taking one trial bottle I just can't help but want to pass it on to others. I had to rush home from work and get in bed as soon as possible for fear I wouldn't get enough rest, but still the next day I was tired, worn out and sleepy. My stomach was nervous and upset. And I couldn't eat a thing that didn't give me indigestion. Now I go to work and feel more like getting out in the amusement world when I've finished my day's work. Thanks to HADACOL." (Why don't you try HADACOL?)

C. B. Sutherland,* Route 1, Box 62, Callahan, Florida, whose system was so deficient: "I just got my fifth bottle of your HADACOL and I can say it's done me more good than any medicine I ever took. I am 62 years old and have had five operations and had been doing very well until around July, 1949. I quit eating and could not do any kind of light work. Then I started to take HADACOL and now I eat anything and I work all day. Thanks to HADACOL. (I am a retired railroad storekeeper.)"

Ada Shepard,* 24 Main Street, North Vernon, Indiana, whose system lacked these elements: "I'm fifty-five years old and have had three operations a few years apart. I work in the Regal Rug Factory and am the head of the Body Department and on my feet all day. For such a long time I was so tired and run-down I could hardly get up and go to work. I could not sleep nights and was just as nervous as could be. I kept hearing about HADACOL, so I decided to try it. I've just finished my first bottle, but I feel like a new person. My whole life seems different, so I can truthfully and highly recommend HADACOL."

Mrs. A. C. Myrick,* General Delivery, Fairhope, Alabama, who had such deficiencies: "Right after my operation I heard about HADACOL. I have taken about six bottles of HADACOL and I feel fine. I am 44 years old and I feel so good since I started taking your HADACOL. I must say HADACOL is truly a wonderful product, and I intend to keep it in my home." (Note: HADACOL is not only a wonderful 'builder-upper' for folks convalescing after operations but also for people whom serious illness has left weak, run-down, because their systems lack Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin.)

MacArthur's Press Censorship Is Not a New One

WASHINGTON.—General MacArthur's banning of newspapermen from Korea emphasized what the American public probably has not realized—namely that there has been virtual censorship over American newsmen in Japan for some time. Unlike news out of Germany, which has not been censored, MacArthur has constantly roved with American newsmen over their right to report what was going on in his area.

One of the men who was at first barred from the Korean front last week, Tom Lambert of the Associated Press, previously had signed a long protest to the American Society of Newspaper Editors complaining of MacArthur's censorship. Others signing the report included representatives of the New York Times, National Broadcasting Company, Time and Life magazines.

They pointed out, among other things, that a newsman "who had written stories which occupation officials considered critical... had his home raided by the Army's CID and that he—'the correspondent'—was subjected to interrogation and threats."

They also pointed out that whereas "the government section (of the occupation forces) actively encouraged correspondents to expose misappropriations of Japanese military supplies, G-1 and G-2, which had classified information relating to the matter, took exception to the resulting stories and efforts of reprisal were taken against at least one correspondent."

"Stories on the purge," the censorship protest continued, "including many facts supplied by G-2, caused their authors to be branded personally by General MacArthur as among the 'most dangerous men in Japan.'"

Observers are now wondering whether MacArthur's censorship may not have caused not only the American public but perhaps the general himself to get the wrong view of what was happening in Japan and Korea. It was following MacArthur's assurance that he could "guarantee" success that President Truman made his faithful Korean decision. Obviously, MacArthur himself was not fully informed at the time he said this.

Capital News Capsules
NO MORE POLITICKING—President Truman has now junked plans for a whistle-stop campaign this fall. He was scheduled to go to California, stepping to help various Democratic candidates en route, but the war crisis has changed everything. The President will now stay close to Washington, will make almost no trips, unless the war situation vastly improves.

WAR POWERS—Senators Taft and Bridges have made independent surveys to see exactly what war powers the White House has left. These surveys indicate that Truman still has the power to allocate scarce raw materials, such as rubber and steel, so Republicans plan to go over Truman's request for war powers with a fine-tooth comb. They will grant him more powers, but only after considerable debate and a lot of nagging.

HIDDEN RUSSIAN NAVY—It is now learned that Russia has a much larger Navy than we ever suspected. The surface ships have been hidden in the Black Sea, while the subs are chiefly in the South Pacific and Baltic. The thing that worries U.S. war chiefs most is that a Russian sub might sink an American troop ship—which would be another sinking of the Maine and mean world war.

TRUMAN'S PUBLIC RELATIONS—White House advisers admit privately that the President's public relations are extremely bad. Some people blame this on Press Secretary Charlie Ross, but those in the know realize that it is chiefly the President himself. Even after being carefully coached, he is apt to make off-the-cuff statements which have unfortunate reverberations. When he announced the Korean decision, Truman missed a great opportunity to go before the public with a fire-side chat explaining the real issues. His failure to do this has led to mediocre morale or the home front and growing isolation in some quarters. He is now trying to make up for this omission.

Take Profits Out of War
Long before the President's message to Congress, farsighted Senator Lester Hunt of Wyoming had helped draft 56 emergency laws providing for every type of control conceivable. These were drafted by a subcommittee under Senator Hunt, and were to be rushed through Congress at the drop of the first Russian bomb. Despite this network of war controls, however, nothing has been done about the basic problem of taking the profits out of war. For years, wise old Bernard Baruch has been urging the control of war profits. If you conscript men's lives, Baruch has argued, you must also conscript such less valuable commodities as factories, raw materials, and profits. However, Congress did not act prior to World War II, and so far there is no proposed law ready for the statute books which would conscript profits in case of World War III. During World War II, most of the nation's big corporations rolled up terrific profits, even after deducting the excess-profits tax. However, Bernie Baruch's sage advice still is being spurned. Senator Hunt's committee is also considering

How to replace Congress in case it should be wiped out by a surprise atomic blast. The Constitution gives state governors the right to appoint U.S. Senators to fill unexpired terms. However, there is no legal way to replace Congressmen before their terms expire, except by special elections. In an emergency, however, the government may not have time to wait for such elections. Legislation for special elections is not yet on the books, though some Senators have urged that it be passed and kept on legislative ice. The idea would be to stockpile legislation much the same as strategic materials are stockpiled—to save time in case of sudden emergency. However, Stuart Symington, the new NSRB chairman, in charge of mobilization planning, is against this idea. He would stockpile the plans, rather than the actual legislation. Then Congress could make last-minute changes and keep the legislation up to date before passing. NOTE—Symington is one of the few who vigorously favor Baruch's proposal that profits in industry be conscripted as well as men's lives.

People Want Truth About War, Even When the News is Bad

By Bruce Blossat
In any war, the problem of security inevitably leads to conflict between the military and the front-line correspondents trying to report the fighting, as they see it. This Korean war presents special difficulties. Officially it isn't a war, so there's no censorship. And events have moved so swiftly there's been no chance to give the field correspondents positive guidance through regular briefings on the broad picture of the campaign. Add to these factors the extremely confused and fluid fighting that has marked the war so far, and you have the ingredients for trouble. I thus already developed, General MacArthur, Far East commander, severely criticized U. S. war correspondents for exaggerated and distorted accounts of the battle. Following this, his press relations officer banned two prominent news agency correspondents from the Korean front.

The officer conceded the factual truth of their dispatches but complained the stories "made the Army look bad" and "gave aid and comfort to the enemy." MacArthur lifted the ban on the correspondents a couple of days later. But in the light of all the circumstances, the complaints seem unduly harsh. MacArthur appears to have had a just complaint, for instance, against the newsmen who reported a "lost battalion" wiped out. The man in the field took the word of excited GIs and when actual casualties were counted they totaled only 21.

U. S. newsmen have gone to the Korean fighting front at risk of their lives to tell the American people what really is happening. At this writing two are dead and several have been wounded.

Admittedly front-line reporters see and hear only what is within their narrow range. They grasp isolated fragments of the full story. Since by definition war is confusion, these accounts are seldom likely to be neat and ordered.

Nevertheless the flesh and blood meaning of war can't be gained by people at home in any other way. Its horror, its danger, its frequent futility are not spelled out in cautiously worded official communiques, written far from the sound and smell of the battlefield.

The communiques are necessary to provide the detached, rounded, calmer view of the fighting. The front-line accounts should be fitted into that wider frame by all of us at home.

Sometimes the field reports, taken together, tell the overall story more quickly and realistically than do the guarded communiques. Occasional exaggerations excepted, this has frequently been the case in the Korean war. MacArthur's steady optimism up to now has proved unwarranted.

Hard decisions and possibly heavy sacrifices lay ahead for the American people. They can act wisely only if they know all the truth that is, compatible with genuine military security. What we know of the truth today is, largely what our war correspondents have told us, at great peril to themselves. A general whipping of the military is hardly a fair reward for this service.

"This town needs storm sewers. Twelfth street west of Montauk is often a rushing river because of improper street drainage. At Mississippi avenue and Twelfth street there is a deep channel with a narrow slab for a crossing. At any time some one may make a misstep and fall in—especially a child or aged person. The bus stops of the city are not marked and automobiles and commercial trucks park and double park where the space should be kept open for the bus to approach the curb."

Heb. 2:6-9; Acts 19:9; John 1:4-7

THE CHRISTIAN WAY IS THE NATURAL WAY
The Christian way is wrought into the texture of life. It is life. There is a striking passage in John 1:3, "And without him was not any thing made that was made." In other words, there is a way stamped into everything—it is the way life is made to work, and that way is the Christian way. "Without him was not any thing made that was made." The stamp of Christ is in everything—it is the way life is made to work. It is the divine intention written into flesh and blood and the total organization of life.

Dr. H. F. Hall says that one does not say to a crocodile, "Now be a crocodile," for it will never be anything else but. But one does say to a man, "Now be a man." Why? For man can and often does live against, or below, the way he is made to live as a man. He can be unnatural. And to be unnatural is to be frustrated. Sin is "trying to live unnaturally"—it is literally "missing the mark"—the mark for which we are inherently made. That "mark" is fashioned into our blood cells, into our tissues, and into our nerve cells—it is the will of God. The laws of our being are not other than the laws of God—they are the laws of God wrought into the constitution of our being. To be true to God is to be true to God, and to be true to God is to be true to Him.

The early Christians sensed this when they used the phrase, "those belonging to the Way" (Acts 9:2, 18:25). Not merely "the Way of salvation," but "the Way"—the Way that life works the way for which it is made—the Way!

In the older presentation of the Gospel we have speech of that blessed word "whosoever" (John 3:16), and rightly so. It was the "whosoever" of an unlimited, redemptive offer. But there is another "whosoever" (Matt. 7:24) which speaks of an unlimited fact: if you build on my words, said Jesus, your house will stand up under life; if you don't, then it will go down in a crash. There are no exceptions—"whosoever."

O Christ, how can I ever cease to thank Thee, that amid the stumblings of life I happened on this—the Way! It fills me with constant surprise that I, even I, have found the Way. My doubts are at rest. Now forward—forever! Amen.

The Doctor Says— Vegetable and Animal Fats Necessary for Normal Diet

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Fats are one of the three great kinds of foodstuffs, the other two being starches and proteins. Fats are not used by the body as easily as the starches and proteins. A fairly complex chemical process has to take place before they can be burned up like the others.

Fats used by the human body are generally divided into those of vegetable origin and those of animal origin. Margarine, many of the fats, are vegetable, and the others are animal. A fairly complex chemical process has to take place before they can be burned up like the others.

Butter and cream are well worth parts of butter one inch square and while, in addition to their fat value, because they are good carriers of vitamin A, which is so much more important to good health. Most of the other fats carry very little of this vitamin.

Fats are present in many parts of a desirable material, which has of the body. They make excellent heat insulators. They cushion vital organs and when stored, fat furnishes a compact form of energy. A person who takes a compact form of energy takes a compact form of energy. A person who takes a compact form of energy takes a compact form of energy.

LITTLE DOC

By Walt Conner

LITTLE DOC informed Brownie on the trail back to Wolf Point that he had a professional call to make. They swung off the trail toward the Rocking R, where the boy was sick with scarlet fever. They halted at the ranch house and dismounted. Then Doc said to his companion: "It'll take about half an hour, maybe longer. Send your man. After that, she led Little Doc and Brownie into the house. She spoke in a low tone. 'Dusty' didn't come to see me, but Old Dad brought the crew. 'Old Dad' said 'Dusty' came in town to have a bench warrant sworn out for Long Andy's arrest for stealing some of his horses. Then, when Old Dad told him Long Andy had a gun in your back when you rode away, Dusty saddled a fresh horse and took Toad with him.' "Toad?" "Kit nodded. 'Goodness knows what Toad has told him about us that night. I'm glad you didn't see Dusty.' Little Doc looked at Kit for a long moment. There were tears in her eyes now. A slow smile spread across his face, that was drawn and gray with utter weariness. Little Doc spoke softly. "You love Dusty, don't you, Kit?" He did not wait for her reply. The slow, creeping across her face was really enough for Little Doc. "I've a notion you just found it out. That's the way it goes. You just get a nurse broken in so she knows the difference between a hypodermic needle and a stethoscope." "You—you're not hurt, are you John?" "Little Doc shrugged and smiled. "I never felt happier. Kit. Take off your nurse's uniform and put on the dress that Dusty Rhodes likes best. That's the last of Little Doc's orders."

Somehow they have helped her to have enough awareness of other people to be able to think of someone else besides herself at an age when self-consciousness is pretty much taken for granted. They must have taught her, too, that a graceful head-held-high walk, a pleasant voice, and the natural dignity that comes from self-respect are as good as beauty in making a girl stand out from a crowd. And they must have let her in on the secret that a girl doesn't have to turn into a giggler or a show-off to make boys notice her. FIGHTS BAN—Marguerite Higgins, above, war correspondent in Korea for the New York Herald Tribune, has protested an order by Gen. Walter H. Walker to leave the battle front and return to Tokyo. General Walker thinks the combat area is no place for a woman, except Army nurses. Miss Higgins' newspaper backed up her protest, declaring that she had fled some of the best reporting to come out of the Korean fighting.

Most of the modern buildings on the Chinese island of Formosa were built during 50 years of Japanese occupation.

NEWSPAPER ARCHIVE

Louie, The Duck, Not Only a Pet But a Generous Egg Producer

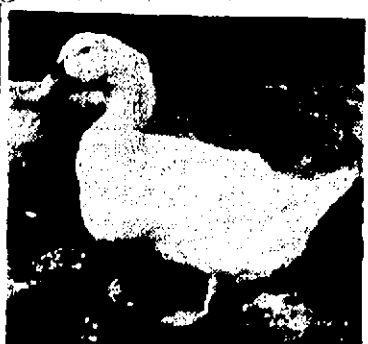

With a quack-quack here and a quack-quack there, Louie, the pet duck belonging to Jimmy and Kay Satterwhite, children of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Satterwhite, 220 South Quincy avenue, wanders about her three by six foot pen in the back yard of the Satterwhite home perfectly satisfied with life as long as she is fed once a day and has a large pan of water to splash and sit in.

But Louie's quacks all have a meaning. When the children of the neighborhood come to see her, and she does have young visitors for blocks around, Louie has a very friendly quack-quack answer as they talk to her. When the door of her pen is opened and she is allowed to waddle around the back yard following her young master she has a very contented little quack-quack as she squats down by him to be petted. But when a stranger walks by, her quack-quack becomes loud and fussy and she quack-quacks at them in much the same manner that a dog barks at strangers.

It was three years ago that Louie was given to Jimmy by his Sunday school teacher, Mrs. Roger Hill, then Miss Alverda Withaus. That was in March, 1947, and Louie was just one day old. Since then she has become an ideal pet, as well as a profitable one. Ever since she laid her first egg on March 2, 1949, each one has been marked down on a calendar and her entire production totals over 200 eggs. She laid 36 eggs in 1949, 75 in 1949 and to date for 1950 she has laid 101 eggs.

Louie was named when her sex was still unknown, but when she began laying eggs a German neighbor shook her head and commented: "Ah, you should have named her Louisa."

Yes, Louie is one of the family. Jimmy wouldn't trade her off for a dog, a cat or even a pony. And as for Louie she will take her little pen and her own small pond of water in the form of a pan any time to any farmyard and any big lake in the world because she likes being Jimmy and Kay's pet duck.

Louie, the Duck

over to his mother. She then reported the incident to the police. The boy's name was given as Freddie Brock son of Rev. and Mrs. B. C. Brock, 214 West Pettis street.
